The benefactors of this foundation, Worth & Dot Howard, were hard-working Arizona pioneers. Worth was a bookkeeper for Arizona's copper mines. His wife Dot was a teacher, who taught in a one-room schoolhouse with dirt floors. Yet, via personal sacrifice, this childless couple achieved financial success and created educational opportunities for others. Like the Howards, when you are able to do so, how will you share your time, talents and resources to benefit others?
